Bob Higgins
Asst. Project Superintendent

United States Army

“Cianbro was the perfect place to work once I got out of the military. The comradery and the closeness of the project teams is a lot like active duty; some joking and kidding, but we come together to get the task done safely and timely. The management team gave me the opportunity for training and growth and supported me through it. As a result, I was given the chance to run my own jobs utilizing the training and skills I received both in the military and through Cianbro to ensure successful project completion.”

Tina Adams
Finance Supervisory Professional

Marines

“Having been in the Marines and been a military spouse, your team members become part of your extended family. Cianbro is like an extended family. The company treats its team members with dignity and respect. I started as a Carpenter’s Helper in 1995 and am currently a Finance Professional, so there is always room to learn and grow within the company. Cianbro appreciates its Veterans and acknowledges them - it’s part of Cianbro’s culture.”
